Subject: Tech entrepreneurs: Tap into SBIR funding with Project Engineuity

PROJECT ENGINEUITY

PROJECTENGINEUITY—an initiative designed to accelerate and empower Black, Latinx and women innovators led by the Dayton Area Chamber of Commerce's Minority Business Partnership (DACC MBP) in collaboration with the Entrepreneurs' Center (EC) and support from Chase.

Project Engineuity brings you a complimentary webinar series of experts to share a deeper understanding of commercialization and technology application potential. Provide valuable feedback from government leaders, investors, and industry partners, along with expert training to support the application process for Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR).

Learn Where the Money Resides to Fund Your Tech Innovation

- Are you a tech entrepreneur looking to secure funding for your innovation that has commercialization potential?
- Are you Black, Latinx or a woman looking for an accelerator to grow and expand your company or business?

If you answered YES, please join our panel of experts sponsored by Chase to unlock how to win SBIR awards. SBIR offers flexible grant funding, commercialization support and the strongest intellectual property rights for small businesses in the federal government.
